JORDAN STONE, Managing Editor.
SAM'L T. WILLIAMS, Political Editor.

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 28, 1873.

A COTEMPORARY says that the insanity of STOKES is hereditary. CAIN was crazy.

The Virginia State Fair opens today. We trust Virginia will aroose herself on this occasion as North Carolina did at her recent State exhibition.

The Warrenton Gazette speaks of Grant as "the long-eared animal which sits in the Presidential chair." This might be termed by Grant an assumption of facts.

The Warrenton Gazette says: "What we need most in this country is soberer views of life." Does friend FOOTE have any reference to the advancement of the temperance cause?

AN EXCHANGE says that the editor of the Wilmington Journal is well calculated to bring a man up to the scratch as a spirited flea. That editor, however, had experienced but little of the money pressure now existing throughout the country.

THE Democratic victory in Baltimore on Wednesday last, in the municipal election, was complete. Mr. VANSANT, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, was elected over Mr. CARSON, Republican, by 10,103 majority.

THE Richmond Enquirer is usually facetious. Alluding to the severe handling that the Radical candidates in Virginia are now receiving, it says:

If this thing of skinning live Radicals is to continue, we must have a statute against "cruelty to animals."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Warrenton Enquirer urges upon the Legislature the necessity of introducing again the whipping post. He argues that there would be much less crime than at present, and that the criminals will be disposed of at much less cost to the State and counties.

EX-PRESIDENT JOHNSON was serenaded in Washington last Thursday, responding in quite a lengthy speech. He did not abuse the administration or make allusions of a personal character except concerning himself. He opposes "Cesarism" and strongly favors the resumption of specie payment. A large crowd listened to his speech.

THE Tarboro Southerner fears that the Edgecombe Agricultural Society has "suspended" in order to be in the fashion. The Agricultural societies are of immense value in the general planting interests, tending as they do to advance the best modes of culture.

THE proposition for a National Convention of journalists, to take action toward remonstrating with Congress against the bill forbidding the free passage of newspapers through the mails, meets with this protest from the Minneapolis Timber:

We think it is high time that journalism had become a profession, rather than an asylum for paupers. It has been crawling long enough, and must stand upon its feet.

THIS meeting of the Southern Historical Society, as we have before stated, will take place in Richmond, Va., to-day and to-morrow. The movement is an important one and will, we doubt not, succeed in establishing measures to bring out the truth of Southern history in connection with the late struggle between the two sections of the country. Every friend of the South would like to see these truths brought out before the memorials now extant shall have disappeared.

THE Tarboro Southerner urges upon the farmers of Edgecombe county the fact that recent developments have shown that many portions of that county are peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of grasses. Many sections of North Carolina are admirably adapted to the growth of grasses, and the sooner our people learn the value of the home-made over the miserable grasses for which $40, $50 and $60 per ton are paid the sooner will we advance on the road to that prosperity which naturally belongs to the South, and which must sooner or later be ours.

SPEAKING of the Rocky Mount Cotton Mills, the Tarboro Southerner says:

"There are at present 64 looms and 1,800 spindles in operation, but it is proposed to increase the capacity this fall to 100 looms and 3,000 spindles, this machinery having been purchased, and is now being shipped—100 hands are constantly employed. Yarns and brown goods are manufactured, which are readily disposed of at good prices in the markets of New York and Philadelphia."

These mills are well managed, being under the immediate supervision of Capt. JAMES S. BATTLE, and have proved exceedingly profitable, no difficulty being found in securing good and adequate labor, and the raw material is obtained at the door with no cost of transportation. The day is not far distant when North Carolina will have in her midst many hundreds of similar institutions; when the great staple of her centre and eastern soil will be manufactured at home, and when we will not be subject to the whims, caprices and "cornerings" of the Northern purchasers, but shall have at home a market for the production of our vast cotton area. God speed the day!"

THE Board of Trustees of the Washington-Lee University, at Lexington, Va., have felt called upon to refute certain publications concerning the school and its relations to the religious denominations. Says the Board:

"The Washington and Lee University has no connection with, nor is it conducted in the interest of any religious denomination on whatever. This University is founded and administered upon the broad basis of an evangelical Christianity. Its peculiar function is to impart a high and catholic scholarship in literature and science. It aims to do this consistently with the principles of true religion; but it neither teaches nor proscribes the religious doctrines of any sect of christians."

The Suffering in Memphis.

The Wilmington Journal of Saturday contains a private letter, written from Raleigh, under date of the 22nd inst., to a lady in Wilmington, the letter referring to the suffering in Memphis and appealing for aid for that plague-stricken city. The author of the letter is at present staying in this city, and is the wife of a prominent citizen of Memphis, formerly from this State, but who is now in Memphis doing what he can to alleviate the wants of the suffering. The letter appeals to every humane heart, and we copy it almost entire. Says the writer:

"My husband, who has not left the city this summer, writes me that all the 60,000 inhabitants it contained all have fed but $8,000; and of those 50 die of yellow fever daily; that there is not a house on Main street, from one extremity of the place to the other, in which one, and often as many as seven, have not died. He tells me that 300 nurses are employed at $5 per day, although much clothing and food have been sent to the sick, there is still need for more because of the fury of the disease and the scarcity with which it seems to cling to the spot."

My daughter, Mrs. W.—, writes me from Jackson, Tenn., where she is sojourning at present, that she trusts I will endeavor to collect some funds and send them, as there are four hundred orphans (made so by yellow fever) thrown destitute upon the town. Fifty of these were received into the Church Home, but the situation of the community was such that, on the day previous to which she wrote, she learned that neither they nor the forty permanent inmates of this institution had provisions for a meal and only twenty cents remained in the treasury. And besides this, these unhappy children had lost all of their clothing and bedding, which were ordered by the city authorities to be burned.

In the Memphis Appeal, of date after her letter, I read that there are at present one thousand orphans reduced to the last extremity there, and that, at the rate at which the people are now dying, the probabilities are that there will be, ere long, two hundred more.

My husband writes that the persons who have been buried are buried, and that, as the rich are gone and all industries are at a standstill, of course the poor have no employment and must starve unless other communites come bravely to their rescue. Large sums of money and food have been received there from the various cities of the Union, and these are being judiciously distributed by benevolent associations and relief committees. Still, there is urgent need for more—much more, as it will be at least a month before the plague ceases.

Traveling in Russia is now quite comfortable, through the introduction of saloon cars and sofas on the railways. The long journeys through Russia from St. Petersburg to Odessa, or Nijni Novgorod to Warsaw, are quite as comfortable as Roman landscape or one Russian village, however, seems just like another. A church with a dome painted white, bright green; next, if one or two wooden houses of two stories, their roofs, perhaps, also painted green, or the whole whitewashed; and a cluster of weather-stained huts, that would pass muster in the backwoods of America, scattered promiscuously in the weedy fields, without gardens, and in no order or symmetrical arrangement—such is a Russian village, and such are thousands.

The late Napoleon III. never had a lively admiration for his relative Prince Napoleon. A Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says that once the Prince Imperial, then not more than six years old, asked his father, "What is the difference between an accident and a misfortune?" "If," replied the Emperor, "your cousin fell into the Seine, that would be an accident; if any one pulled him out, that would be a misfortune."

Mr. Foster, an eminent member of Parliament, declared, "it is not true that the poor are getting poorer, but it is true that all classes aspire to live on a higher scale of comfort than sufficed to content the last generation, and that inasmuch as there is far more of absolute enjoyment, the battle of life, the stretching of ways and means, continues to be as intense as heretofore."

The Supreme Court of Illinois has just decided that betting on an election is not gambling, and that a judgment rendered on a note given in payment of such a debt is good and valid. It is to be hoped that this decision will be strictly confined to Illinois, and that no other judicial tribunals in the country will be found foolish enough to offer such a premium to political gaming.

An editor in a neighboring city has been reading one of Dr. Hall's "Health Tracts," in which the doctor proves conclusively that married men live longer than bachelors. This journal says he doesn't see how it is, for he has been married three times, and yet he knows a bald-headed bachelor who is twice as old as he is.

THE DAILY NEWS.

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 28, 1873.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The Good Templars of Wilmington are increasing in numbers.

The Baptist State Convention meets in Warrenton on the 5th of November.

The business of Enfield is looking up—the burg wears a placid appearance.

Col. Waddell is to deliver his lecture, "Hymnomania," in Tarboro at an early day.

The Wilmington pavements are being resurfaced under the management of Capt. Brain.

Col. S. A. Sharpe has been appointed Chief Marshal of the Hickory Tavern Fair.

The new hotel at Halifax will accommodate many visitors to the McDonal Fair this week.

The Warrenon Gazette says large crowds from that section will go to the McDonal Fair this week.

Gov. Vance has been invited to deliver the address at the Sampson Fair. He has not signified his consent.

The debt of New Hanover is $45,000. The current expenses of the county are met with promptness, and her credit is good.

The editor of the Enfield Times is giving an interesting sketch of the Hammock Cave of Kentucky, which he has recently visited.

Mr. Sidney Yount, of Catawba county, raised ninety-three bushels and three pecks of corn on one acre of upland ground.

Capt. White, of Warrenton, has invented a single-lever double-barreled spark extinguisher for his steam cotton gin, which he says puts out fire readily.

The National Bank of Cabarrus will commence operations, in Concord, on the 5th of November. L. G. Helling is President and Noah Partee is Cashier.

The Tarboro Southerner says it is not true that a colored military company of that place has applied to the Adjutant General for arms—at least, it is unknown there.

The Clinton Reporter says that Dr. C. Tate Murphy, Senator from Sampson, has located in Clinton with a view of practicing medicine in that town and surrounding country.

The Warrenton Gazette regrets to learn of the severe illness of Messrs. Weldon N. Edwards and John T. Williams. Mr. Williams has been speechless since Thursday morning.

On Tuesday of last week, Ed Lipe, Daniel Lipe and W. R. Blackwell, were arrested at Cabarrus county on the charge of dealing in counterfeit currency. They were released on bail to appear at Greensboro.

Brunswick county has a bold thief, who is not only adroit in his operations, but succeeds in knocking the constable down at the jail door and effecting his escape. He boasts of the singular name of "John Smith."

The Fair of the Cape Fear Agricultural Society will be held in December, commencing on the 9th. Among the features of the occasion will be a grand tournament, the participants to be clad in armor, a gift concert and a shooting match.

The corner stone of the new Methodist Church at Weldon was laid by the Masonic fraternity on Friday last. The ceremony is represented as being most interesting, having been participated in by Masons from Wilmington and elsewhere.

Says the Wilmington Star of Saturday: "Mr. William Wilson, of Robeson county, who has been on the track of the murderers of Mr. B. F. Smith, at Lumberton, on Thursday night of last week, states that he has done everything in his power to find the guilty parties and has failed, to go to Wadesboro and from there to Whiteville, but the witnesses who accompanied him could not find the men connected with the circus whom they had promised to identify. Wilson therefore delivered the papers to the Sheriff at Whiteville and returned home. It is reported that three men left the circus at Rockingham on the Friday succeeding the murder and proceeded in the direction of Charlotte, and it is generally believed that these were the three men who are alleged to have committed the murder, and for whose arrest warrants were issued."

MISCELLANEOUS.

Views of New York Bankers on the Currency Question.

The Tribune of last Thursday contains the opinions of a number of the Presidents of the different banks of that city upon the present condition of financial matters, from which we make the following brief extracts:

"Stephen Knapp, of the Mechanics' Bank, New York: Wall street and I did not believe it best to allow a full resumption of currency payments just now. Most of the banks had paid out a large proportion of their deposits and some of them might be seriously depleted if the understanding that currency would be paid out freely should get abroad. It was better to let the currency work its way back gradually, and with the great influx of gold here from abroad, he thought specie payments might be the result. That, of course, would be better for everybody. Although we could not use it for currency, yet it afforded a solid foundation upon which all values and all paper could stand steadily, and a continued apparent suspension of currency seemed likely to hurry up the event of a resumption of specie."

P. C. Calhoun, President of the Fourth National Bank, said there had never been any practical suspension. The banks have all paid National bank notes and there is now an actual surplus of currency in all the banks. A man can get a thousand dollars cash to sell $100,000 of National bank notes, and he could not find a buyer. The currency is coming in in great quantity, faster than it ever did before, and because of the accommodation afforded by loan certificates it accumulates in the bank vaults. If a man comes with a check for $100,000, or $500, he is paid over the counter, of course; if the amount is larger, say $1,000 or $2,000, he is paid by certified check.

The editor of the Enfield Times is giving an interesting sketch of the Hammock Cave of Kentucky, which he has recently visited.

Mr. Sidney Yount, of Catawba county, raised ninety-three bushels and three pecks of corn on one acre of upland ground.

Capt. White, of Warrenton, has invented a single-lever double-barreled spark extinguisher for his steam cotton gin, which he says puts out fire readily.

The corner stone of the new Methodist Church at Weldon was laid by the Masonic fraternity on Friday last. The ceremony is represented as being most interesting, having been participated in by Masons from Wilmington and elsewhere.

Says the Wilmington Star of Saturday: "Mr. William Wilson, of Robeson county, who has been on the track of the murderers of Mr. B. F. Smith, at Lumberton, on Thursday night of last week, states that he has done everything in his power to find the guilty parties and has failed, to go to Wadesboro and from there to Whiteville, but the witnesses who accompanied him could not find the men connected with the circus whom they had promised to identify. Wilson therefore delivered the papers to the Sheriff at Whiteville and returned home. It is reported that three men left the circus at Rockingham on the Friday succeeding the murder and proceeded in the direction of Charlotte, and it is generally believed that these were the three men who are alleged to have committed the murder, and for whose arrest warrants were issued."

This is the age of literary discoveries and explanations. It is getting to be somewhat doubtful whether the people of two or three hundred years ago ever wrote what they are reported to have written, or whether they may have written at all. The latest explanation concerns "Paradise Lost." Did Milton fall into hell directly from the Bible, did he borrow it from Cædmon's work on a like, or did the Dutch poet, Joost van den Vondel's "Lucifer," suggest it? These are questions which have been long argued. The Cologne Gazette thinks it has found out the truth, stating that the catalogue of the students at Leyden for the last three hundred years shows that Milton studied in the venerable University there at the time when Vondel's poetry was most enthusiastically esteemed in Holland. The language in which "Lucifer" was printed could not have repelled Milton, for he was a master of it, and it is more than probable that it was then he found suggestion, if not inspiration.

PROFESSOR WILDER ON COLLEGE SECRET SOCIETIES.—The events connected with the tragic death of young Leggett, student at Cornell University, New York, has brought out a long letter from Professor Wilder, of that institution, to the editor of the New York Tribune. After summarizing the testimony at the inquest, and the difficulty of obtaining evidence from members of the secret societies, he goes on to condemn the secret societies as tending to promote disorder and corruption. He suggests that colleges prohibit the formation or continuance of secret societies, exact a pledge from every entering student, and, if necessary, make unhesitating expulsion the penalty of membership. The professor carries his criticisms beyond college clubs, and opposes all secret organizations whatever.

MY OLD WOMAN AND I.

By JOHN BROUGHTON.

We have crossed the bridge o'er the middle of life.
My old woman and I,
Taking on and on again, and the strife,
With all the travelers passing by,
And though on our pathway the soundings
are ripe,
There's light in the Western sky.
Some losses and crosses, of course, we've had,
My old woman and I;
But, bless you, we never found time to be sad.
And a very good reason why—
We were busy as bees, and we weren't so mad.
As to stop in our work to cry.
On our changeable road as we journeyed along,
My old woman and I;
The kindly companions we met in the throng,
Made our lives like a vision fly.
And therefore the few that imagined us
wron
Scarcely cost us a single sigh.
The weak and the weary we've striven to cheer.
My old woman and I;
For each of us thought that our duty while here
Was to do as we'd be done by,
In the cause to exhibit a balance clear
When the record day is nigh.
